Mentorship is a relationship in which a more experienced or more knowledgeable person helps to guide a less experienced or less knowledgeable person. The mentor may be older or younger than the person being mentored, but he or she must have a certain area of expertise. It is a learning and development partnership between someone with vast experience and someone who wants to learn.

Of course, this is by no means the same as interviewing or being interviewed for a job. One is based on evaluation, while the other supposedly results in an objective report. And yes, there are a variety of other differences. However, central to both is the extraction of information, the asking of questions, and the formulation of answers.
