The Z80 CPU is an 8-bit based microprocessor introduced by Zilog as the startup company's first product. The Z80 was conceived by Federico Faggin in late 1974 and developed by him and his then-11 employees at Zilog from early 1975 until March 1976, when the first fully working samples were delivered. The Z80 was officially introduced on the market in July 1976.

Below is the final schematic for the Menta ECG Simulator project. LadyAda's Eagle schematic for the Menta was used as a starting point and I simply added the parts required to complete the project. I did not attempt to make a custom circuit board from this schematic since the intent is to simply solder the D/A converter, etc. directly to the breadboard area of the Menta

Rated 5 out of 5 by BLVCKK from Great retro product and you can add more games This is a great retro product that works with the same "delay" in controls as the original. While some games are designed for paddles which are not included, the unit is designed with the original 9 pin D sockets, so original paddles and controllers can be used, and they're easier to find online than you'd think.

The following is a partial list of products, services, and subsidiaries of International Business Machines (IBM) Corporation and its predecessor corporations, beginning in the 1890s.. This list is eclectic; it includes, for example, the AN/FSQ-7, which was not a product in the sense of offered for sale, but was a product in the sense of manufactured—produced by the labor of IBM.
